Exploring Entrepreneurship Pearson Higher Ed

When starting a business or expanding an existing one, you may have asked yourself how to assess whether the business opportunity will be profitable or not, and how to make it more profitable at a faster pace. You may have to make decisions about the business plan such as pricing, budgeting, as well as identifying the investments to be made. At last, will it be a good decision to commit your money (or your investors' money) into a business venture? This book is written to help you like a quick and useful guide to analysing the profitability of any business venture. It establishes a methodology centred on the break-even analysis to examine a business activity but also covers other aspects such as pricing, budgeting and investment appraisal. A brief overview of its contents:

- Understanding costs, revenues and margins
- Testing the business feasibility
- How to build a budget
- Investment decisions - to invest or not to invest?

As the book is written in a way that discusses the fundamentals straightaway, it may not be suitable for someone expecting to gain an in-depth knowledge of aspects related to business finance and accounting. Therefore, this is not an academic book in a strict sense. Despite using insights from both the authors' business experience and proven academic research, it is written without adopting the formality and rigidity of academic writing. Its reduced size should fit the needs of speed and effectiveness that most business leaders nowadays require. We hope that the small investment of this purchase will turn into lots of profits for your business venture. We wish you all the best and all the luck!

Writing for College, Writing for Your Self Ft Press Updated edition of a comprehensive introduction to the economics of water management, with self-contained treatment of all necessary economic concepts. Economics brings powerful insights to water management, but most water professionals receive limited training in it. The second edition of this text offers a comprehensive development of water resource economics that is accessible to engineers and natural scientists as well as to economists. The goal is to build a practical platform for understanding and performing economic analysis using both theoretical and empirical tools. Familiarity with microeconomics or natural resource economics is helpful, but all the economics needed is presented and developed progressively in the text. The book focuses on the scarcity of water quantity (rather than on water quality). The author presents the economic theory of resource allocation, recognizing the peculiarities imposed by water, and then goes on to treat a range of subjects including conservation, groundwater depletion, water law, policy analysis, cost-benefit analysis, water marketing, privatization, and demand and supply estimation. Added features of this updated edition include a new chapter on water scarcity risk (with climate change and necessary risk tools introduced progressively) and new risk-attentive material elsewhere in the text; sharper treatment of block rates and pricing doctrine; expanded attention to contemporary literature and issues; and new appendixes on input-output analysis, water footprinting and virtual water, and cost allocation. Each chapter ends with a summary and exercises. A-Level Accounting Frank Wood's Business Accounting Volume 1 Making Human Beings Human: Bioecological Perspectives on Human Development is a landmark collection that traces and summarizes Urie Bronfenbrenner's thoughts on the bioecological theory of human development and recommends avenues for future research. The majority of the twenty-three retrospective articles were written by Bronfenbrenner, while some were written with colleagues in his own or related fields, over the course of six decades. The book's articles document the domain of inquiry that has emerged gradually over many years and has now acquired a title of its own-the bioecological theory of human development. Making Human Beings Human is a culminating work by a prominent figure in the field of human development and will help to shape the future of the field.
