Final Draft Level 2 Teacher's Manual Collins Caribbean Social Sciences

The story of three generations in twentieth-century China that blends the intimacy of memoir and the panoramic sweep of eyewitness history—a bestselling classic in thirty languages with more than ten million copies sold around the world, now with a new introduction from the author. An engrossing record of Mao's impact on China, an unusual window on the female experience in the modern world, and an inspiring tale of courage and love, Jung Chang describes the extraordinary lives and experiences of her family members: her grandmother, a warlord's concubine; her mother's struggles as a young idealistic Communist; and her parents' experience as members of the Communist elite and their ordeal during the Cultural Revolution. Chang was a Red Guard briefly at the age of fourteen, then worked as a peasant, a "barefoot doctor," a steelworker, and an electrician. As the story of each generation unfolds, Chang captures in gripping, moving—and ultimately uplifting—detail the cycles of violent drama visited on her own family and millions of others caught in the whirlwind of history.

Gifted and talented in many ways, Sara Loomis, twenty-six, has learned to accept her one glaring inadequacy: her sexual repression. Kidnapped during the robbery of a convenience store in the Ozark Mountains on Halloween, Sara is terrified that the hillbillies will carry out their threat to rape and murder her. Instead, she is delivered to Bo, a reclusive, mute mountain man who, one captor assures, will murder her humanely. But while Bo, the silent caretaker, does not murder Sara, neither does he heed her pleas to return her to civilization. Sara is further frustrated when her escape attempts are thwarted by her own stupidity and cowardice. Over twelve days, Sara grudgingly begins to understand and even respect Bo's primitive lifestyle. Gradually, this unlikely maestro arouses passion which stimulates and frightens his prisoner, intensifying her need to escape. In those attempts, Sara inadvertently puts herself in one life-threatening situation after another.
