China's rise and stepped-up involvement in Southeast Asia have prompted a blend of anticipation and unease among its smaller neighbors. The stunning growth of China has yanked up the region's economies, but its militarization of the South China Sea and dam building on the Mekong River has nations wary about Beijing's outsized ambitions. Southeast Asians long felt relatively secure, relying on the United States as a security hedge, but that confidence began to slip after the Trump administration launched a trade war with China and questioned the usefulness of traditional alliances. This compelling book provides a snapshot of ten countries in Southeast Asia by exploring their diverse experiences with China and how this impacts their perceptions of Beijing's actions and its long-term political, economic, military, and "soft power" goals in the region.

marketing más relevantes para las empresas, puesto que permite facilitar la conexión entre la oferta y la demanda. En los últimos tiempos, lo que era una sencilla función de conexión se ha hecho tremendamente compleja debido, entre otras cuestiones, a la globalización de los mercados, a la constante evolución de los formatos comerciales y a la multiplicidad de variables que influyen en los canales de distribución. Por otra parte, el sector de la distribución comercial realiza una valiosa contribución al desarrollo económico del territorio, tanto directamente a través de su aportación al Producto Interior Bruto y a la creación de empleo, como indirectamente mediante las funciones que presta para otros sectores productivos. En definitiva, la función comercial es hoy más notoria que nunca y su relevancia no solo se pone de manifiesto en los organigramas de las empresas y en los recursos que éstas destinan, sino que también las Administraciones Públicas prestan cada vez más atención al desarrollo de infraestructuras, normas y ofertas de formación que propicien la eficiencia del sector. Es en este contexto en el que un grupo de profesores con amplia experiencia docente, investigadora y ejecutiva en la dirección de empresas, tomamos la iniciativa de elaborar este manual de Distribución Comercial Aplicada adaptado a las necesidades de la actividad docente universitaria. La obra tiene una clara orientación práctica que facilita la adopción de las competencias claves relacionadas con la materia no solo a los estudiantes sino también a todos aquellos empresarios, profesionales o interesados que se acerquen a la publicación con interés de conocer los condicionantes, características y estrategias de la moderna distribución. Con este objetivo, el manual se compone de nueve capítulos en los que se abordan de una manera secuencial los rasgos de la función de distribución, los agentes que intervienen y las políticas competitivas más destacables. Cada capítulo comienza fijando los objetivos de aprendizaje para realizar posteriormente la exposición de los contenidos teóricos que se han acompañado profusamente de ejemplos y lecturas. Al final de cada unidad se ha incluido un resumen y el glosario de términos más destacables que permiten una mejor comprensión. Esta segunda edición de la obra incorpora en todos los capítulos nuevas preguntas de revisión y de discusión, así como nuevos casos prácticos. Además, se han actualizado muchos ejemplos para adaptar el manual a los continuos cambios que se producen en un sector tan dinámico como es la distribución comercial. Todos los capítulos incorporan una relación de recursos webs y la bibliografía de referencia que el lector puede utilizar para profundizar en el tema. Índice: La distribución comercial.- Los intermediarios en la distribución comercial.- El consumidor en el establecimiento detallista.- Selección del canal: estrategias de distribución del fabricante.- Relaciones en el canal de distribución.- Estrategias del distribuidor.- Estrategia de localización.- Estrategia de Merchandising.- La logística de la distribución.

A rigorous but nontechnical treatment of major topics in urban economics. Lectures on Urban Economics offers a rigorous but nontechnical treatment of major topics in urban economics. To make the book accessible to a broad range of readers, the analysis is diagrammatic rather than mathematical. Although nontechnical, the book relies on rigorous economic reasoning. In contrast to the cursory theoretical development often found in other textbooks, Lectures on Urban Economics offers thorough and exhaustive treatments of models relevant to each topic, with the goal of revealing the logic of economic reasoning while also teaching urban economics. Topics covered include reasons for the existence of cities, urban spatial structure, urban sprawl and land-use controls, freeway congestion, housing demand and tenure choice, housing policies, local public goods and services, pollution, crime, and quality of life. Footnotes throughout the book point to relevant exercises, which appear at the back of the book. These 22 extended exercises (containing 125 individual parts) develop numerical examples based on the models analyzed in the chapters. Lectures on Urban Economics is suitable for undergraduate use, as background reading for graduate students, or as a professional reference for economists and scholars interested in the urban economics perspective.

This is volume 3 of a three-volume publication on Bangladesh's trade prospects. Bangladesh's ambition is to build on its very solid growth and poverty reduction achievements, and accelerate growth to become a middle income country by 2021, and share prosperity more widely amongst its citizens. This includes one of its greatest development challenges: to provide gainful employment to the over 2 million people that will join the labor force each year over the next decade. Moreover, only 54.1 million of its 94 million working age people are employed. Bangladesh needs to use its labor endowment even more intensively to increase growth and, in turn, to absorb the incoming labor. The Diagnostic Trade Integration Study identifies the following actions centered around four pillars to sustain and accelerate export growth: (1) breaking into new markets through a) better trade logistics to reduce delivery lags ; as world markets become more competitive and newer products demand shorter lead times, to generate new sources of competitiveness and thereby enable market diversification; and b) better exploitation of regional trading opportunities in nearby growing and dynamic markets, especially East and South Asia; (2) breaking into new products through a) more neutral and rational trade policy and taxation and bonded warehouse schemes; b) concerted efforts to spur domestic investment and attract foreign direct investment, to contribute to export promotion and diversification, including by easing the energy and land constraints; and c) strategic development and promotion of services trade; (3) improving worker and consumer welfare by a) improving skills and literacy; b) implementing labor and work safety guidelines; and c) making safety nets more effective in dealing with trade shocks; and (4) building a supportive environment, including a) sustaining sound macroeconomic fundamentals; and b) strengthening the institutional capacity for strategic policy making aimed at the objective of international competitiveness to help bring focus and coherence to the government's reform efforts. This third volume provides in-depth analysis of eight different manufacturing and services sectors of the Bangladeshi economy, which help to illustrate the thematic analysis of volume 2 and ground it in sector experiences. Besides pointing to cross-cutting themes, the analysis also highlights some specific issues and actions that could help relieve constraints to faster export growth in these sectors.

This book covers different aspects of energy sustainability in residential buildings and neighborhoods, starting from the construction and design aspects, and moving on to HVAC systems and lighting, and the applications, harvesting, use and storage of renewable energy. The volume focuses on smart and sustainable use of energy, discussing both the technological advancements and the economic, social and environmental impacts. Novel approaches to recycling of waste and materials in the context of residential buildings are also presented. This volume will be of interest to researchers and policy makers working in the fields of renewable energy, sustainable design and city planning.

Big Data Science in Finance John Wiley & Sons

The financial deregulation of the last quarter century has meant large flows of funds around the world seeking the highest risk-adjusted return for investors. Real estate is now established as an important asset class and advances in information technology provide the necessary tools to complement global developments in real estate finance and investment. A variety of investment vehicles have emerged, and Real Estate Finance in the New Economy examines these along with financing and risk in the context of globalization, deregulation and an increasingly integrated international world economy by exploring questions like: How have real estate financial structures evolved as economies grow and become internationalised? What role do economic change and financial systems play in the development of real estate investment? Are the risks associated with the 'new economy' really new? What is the future direction for real estate financing? The authors develop an economic framework for discussions on individual financial products to examine how real estate financial structures change with economic growth and internationalisation and also to show how developments in real estate finance impact economic growth.

The Government has been widely commended for its efforts to improve business conditions and reduce corruption, while a relatively conservative fiscal policy has helped boost the economy's credibility and steer investment into the private sector. With the economy concentrated in the Metro Manila region, major challenges lie ahead in overcoming long-standing infrastructure bottlenecks and developing stronger energy and manufacturing sectors. Yet the government is increasing its efforts to spread manufacturing and business process outsourcing growth across the country, and clear obstacles to developing other sectors where outlying regions have strong potential. 2015 is set to mark the inaugural year of the ASEAN Economic Community, with the Philippines playing an integral role in the foundation of this ambitious regional venture.

Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more. Luxury and Rubble is the tale of two cities in Ho Chi Minh City. It is the story of two planned, mixed-use residential and commercial developments that are changing the face of Vietnam's largest city. Since the early 1990s, such developments have been steadily reorganizing urban landscapes across the country. For many Vietnamese, they are a symbol of the country's emergence into global modernity and of post-socialist economic reforms. However, they are also sites of great contestation, sparking land disputes and controversies over how to compensate evicted residents. In this penetrating ethnography, Erik Harms vividly portrays the human costs of urban reorganization as he explores the complex and sometimes contradictory experiences of individuals grappling with the forces of privatization in a socialist country.

"Before chain coffeeshops and luxury high-rises, before even the beginning of desegregation and the 1968 riots, Washington's Greater U Street was known as Black Broadway. From the early 1900s into the 1950s, African Americans plagued by Jim Crow laws in other parts of town were free to own businesses here and built what was often described as a "city within a city." Local author and journalist Briana A. Thomas narrates U Street's rich and unique history, from the early triumph of emancipation to the days of civil rights pioneer Mary Church Terrell and music giant Duke Ellington, through the recent struggle of gentrification" --
